COOLIDGE STRESSES ECONOMY

PRESIDENT ISSUES WARNING ON DRAINS AGAINST TREASURY

Margin Of Prosperity
Always Small Says
Executive

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Addressing the last scheduled business meeting of his administration, President Coolidge last night expressed satisfaction with his economic program, pointing out at the same time that national prosperity could continue only through constructive economy in government.

The president warned against unnecessary drains on the federal treasury. He called attention to the increasing costs of state and local governments.

"The margin between prosperity and depression is always very small," Mr. Coolidge said at one point. "A decrease of less than ten per cent in the income of the nation would produce a deficit in our present budget. The cost of state and local governments are rapidly mounting."

He predicted this statement by pointing out costs of state and local governments had increased from $3,900,000,000 in 1921 to $7,931,000,000 in 1927.

At another point, explaining the tendency of greater expenses in government operation, the president said:

"A short time ago there were pending before congress, and seriously being advocated, bills which would have redoubled our annual cost of government. At the present time committees have reported, and there are on the calendar in congress, bills which would cost more than a billion dollars. Had there not been a constant insistence upon a policy of rigid economy, many of these bills would have become law."

Mr. Coolidge pointed out that since the inauguration of the budget system the public debt had been reduced $6,667,000,000, and that the saving in interest from this and refunding operations was $963,000,000.

Brig. Gen. H. M. Lord, budget director, who followed the president, warned that the government might end the year with a deficit unless expenses were curtailed.

"HUNCH" REVEALS MAN'S DEATH

BELLEVEUE, O., Jan. 29.—Traveling half way across the continent on the "hunch" that his brother was one of those killed in the St. Louis, Kan. crash here last Tuesday, Harry G. Hanson of Kansas City today identified the eighteenth victim of the tragedy.

The dead man, Francis Hanson, 34, painter of Kansas City, was on his way from Detroit to Cleveland in search of work, his brother said.

They had exchanged letters twice a week since their separation several weeks ago. Harry received his last letter Monday. Reading in a newspaper of the bus crash, and knowing that his brother was planning to leave Detroit for Cleveland, he started for Bellevue because he "couldn't rest easily," he said.

He quickly identified one of the two bodies in the morgue here as that of his brother. Burial probably will be made here.

PHYSICIAN DENIES FORFEITING BOND

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—In a telegram to the United Press today, Dr. Forrest Stultz, former health commissioner of Champaign County, who was indicted here on charges of violating the prohibition laws, denied he willfully remained away from court when his case was called yesterday.

The criminal court yesterday declared the physician's $500 bond—posted after his arrest in Bexley, a suburb—forfeited when Dr. Stultz failed to appear.

In his telegram today, the physician said he was not notified to appear in court yesterday and "therefore there was no intention on my part of causing my bond to be forfeited."

"Whenever I am notified," he said, "I shall appear."

Dr. Stultz was taken into custody on Oct. 31, the arresting officer charging he found liquor in his possession.

SLAYS WIFE AT HER REQUEST

More Honors For Heroes

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Further acclamation faced the heroes of the Florida rescue today but the modest seamen will be able to escape from it all tomorrow when their ship, the United States liner America, sails for Europe.

Captain George Fried, Chief Officer Harry Manning and the others to whom the city has poured out a warm four-day welcome, have accepted the tribute gracefully. But they have made it clear that acting the part of heroes is not to their liking.

A dinner tonight, more informal than the functions which have preceded it, brings the program of fees to an end.

The reception reached its climax yesterday when the men from the America were escorted up Broadway to the acclaim of thousands. They were lauded in speeches at city hall, had medals pinned on them and received generous checks from a Brooklyn newspaper fund.

Captain Fried, who drove his ship 350 miles off his course and did a masterful job of seamanship in locating the storm battered Florida, received $5,000. Manning, who sat in the stern of a frail lifeboat and fought with his crew through tremendous seas to the actual rescue, was given $2,500. Radio Operator Nelson Smith and the men who manned the lifeboat received $500 each.

Four of the thirty-two men saved from the Florida were still in a Hoboken hospital. The ship's radio operator, Nunzio Di Gangi, will be awarded a gold medal by the Veteran Wireless Operators' Association tonight. The crew, more quietly feasted than the America's men will receive cash donations tomorrow and sail for Italy later in the week.

Each had been killed by a single shot through the head. In a letter to Coroner Howe, Kirkbride assumed complete responsibility for the "mad" murder of his wife. To the sheriff he wrote that he finally had yielded to his wife's plea to end her mental suffering.

Mrs. O. M. Gilbert and Mrs. Mary Boyd, sisters of Kirkbride, received letters in which Kirkbride said he and his wife often had discussed her murder over "unstable" psychiatric examinations.

The sisters confirmed the statements that Mrs. Kirkbride, who served as her husband's secretary, had discussed her murder and was convinced she was becoming insane.

A half dozen letters, all written by Kirkbride, were found in various prominent places in the house. All of them stressed that he was killing his wife as an act of mercy because Mrs. Kirkbride believed she was losing her mind.

In one note, written apparently in extenuation of the crime, Kirkbride wrote:

"Falling eyesight, oncoming deafness, old age, childless, alone and comfortless, I am driven to this act. Loss of my job because of silly assinine politics makes life a valueless thing."

"I see nothing in the future but cares, worry, failure and possible collapse and I am merely seeking the light that gleams and shines in the distant future for both of us."

Another message, addressed to his wife, said "Sweetheart, it's cruel in one way, but it's what you longed and prayed for and I cannot bear to go alone and leave you in distress, anguish and disgrace in years to come. Let him who never bore a scar laugh at pain. I love you, sweetheart, and am only trying to be merciful."

The measure, introduced in the house, asks an appropriation of $3,000 for the Greenville historical society to purchase and improve the eight-acre plot.

The bill provides that the ownership of the land revert to state control, under the direction of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, after the improvements are completed.

The Newcastle stationmaster, fitted out in the finery of a top hat, was alone on the platform when Wales and his two pet dogs left the train after an all-night ride from London.

A crowd of townsfolk who had arrived at his hotel early to greet the prince, doffed their hats and hurried him in unison as he entered. After his call on the Mayor, the Prince inspected a large warehouse, used as a clothes distributing center, before starting his visits to the miners.

Snow had made the roads about Newcastle slushy, and the prince wore orange and brown rubbers as he began his inspection tour. A black derby, and old-looking light grey suit and a huge beige overcoat also were part of the prince's costume.

The prince manifested his first public interest in the condition of the miners when he made a Christmas radio plea for funds to relieve them. The response was generous, but he resolved to make a personal inspection of the districts so he would be in position to seek further relief if necessary.

The tour is expected to have the added value of bringing further unsolicited contributions to a fund being raised by the lord mayor of London. The fund already totals approximately $2,535,000 and the government has promised to match pound for pound subscribed.

LETTERS SAY WOMAN FEARED INSANITY; ATTORNEY SUICIDES

Claims Woman Chose
Pistol To Avoid Losing
Mind

BOULDER, Colo., Jan. 29.—J. E. Kirkbride, 45, former district attorney, murdered his wife at her request to save her from insanity and then committed suicide, letters revealed today.

The bodies of Kirkbride and his wife were found side by side in a bedroom of their home. Nearby were six letters addressed to Kirkbride's two sisters, his legal associates, the coroner and sheriff.

Each had been killed by a single shot through the head. In a letter to Coroner Howe, Kirkbride assumed complete responsibility for the "mad" murder of his wife. To the sheriff he wrote that he finally had yielded to his wife's plea to end her mental suffering.

GALES CONTINUE TO HARASS SHIPPING; SEEK THREE SHIPS

Trawler Seiner Is Still Missing; Relief
Sent

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Atlantic shipping was still harassed by northwest gales today as rescue efforts were pushed for three vessels whose fate and whereabouts were unknown.

Five destroyers left New London, Conn., to hunt for the steam trawler Seiner, missing with twenty men off the New England coast. Owners said they believed the Seiner had broken down but that she would survive the storm.

The wrecking tug Relief has gone to the aid of the Norwegian tugboat Fernlane, drifting with a broken rudder 700 miles east of Bermuda. There were thirty men on the Fernlane.

Nothing has been heard from the Italian freighter Capo Verde, which sent out an S. O. S. last Friday. The vessel carried about twenty-five men. A salvage tug was going to her assistance. The Capo Verde was en route to Baltimore from Catania and was helpless midway between the Azores and Bermuda.

The British freighter Silver Maple was making seven knots toward New York from a position 700 miles off Boston, where she sent out a call for help Sunday. Her broken steering gear was repaired. The coast guard cutters Tampa and Mojave were in the vicinity and were expected to reach her during the day.

The American Tanker Dixiano, which grounded on the southern coast of Cuba, was pulled off the reef by the tug Warbler.

IN CONSPIRACY CASE; SENATOR FESS NAMED

Harry D. Silver Also Mentioned In Testimony
Against State Treasurer On Bribery Charge;
Denies Connection

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—A trap set to catch State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley in an alleged plot to tip off Cincinnati breweries on contemplated raids was described at Buckley's trial for conspiracy to offer a bribe today.

John Eckhart, federal prohibition officer, whom Buckley is charged with attempting to bribe, said the state treasurer was induced to come to Eckhart's home and induced to repeat the details of his plot. Two dictaphone microphones were installed in the room and three prohibition department attaches listened in on the conversation.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—Governor Myers Y. Cooper will be called as a witness in the trial of State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, Federal District Attorney Haveth E. Mau announced today. U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, who with Governor Cooper, was mentioned in initial testimony, will not be called, Mau said.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—The trial of State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, on charges of conspiracy to offer a bribe, was resumed today with the names of five prominent Republicans injected into the testimony.

John F. Eckhart, assistant regional federal prohibition enforcement chief, the first witness for the government, brought in the names of Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Senator Simeon D. Fess and Federal Judge Benson W. Hough, who is presiding at the trial.

Robert A. Brumbaugh, of Dayton, one of Buckley's attorneys, in (temporarily) alleged him, Eckhart said:

"On October 13, 1928 Buckley phoned me to come to his office and get some of his campaign cards to give out. He was in the midst of his campaign for reelection."

"On my arrival Buckley showed me a huge pile of envelopes which he said contained his campaign literature."

"Buckley, pointing to the pile of envelopes, said there was a lot of money and work represented there, but that he wanted to get a big vote and would later run for governor or United States Senator."

"He told me of all the political influence he wielded in Ohio. He said if he were elected to the senate or governorship he would care for all of his friends."

"Then Buckley said to me, 'John, the proposition I am going to make to you must go no further. If you do not agree I'll say that I never said it as nobody knows it but you and me.'"

"The Cincinnati breweries want to make real beer and they tell me they have everything fixed down there, but that they are afraid of you. They will pay you, through me, $300 a month, if you will tip them off when the federal officers

OGDEN MILLS DIES; WAS FINANCIER, ART LOVER, SPORTSMAN

Father Of Treasury As sistant Known As Philanthropist

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Ogden Mills, financier, philanthropist, sportsman and lover of the arts, died early today at the age of 72.

Mills had been ill more than three weeks. An attack of bronchitis developed into pneumonia, which in turn was followed by erysipelas. Two blood transfusions failed to save his life.

Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, was with his father during the final hours of his life. A daughter, the Countess of Grandard, also was present.

The son of Darius Ogden Mills, he was born in Sacramento, Calif., in 1856. O. D. Mills had been active in California in the first days of the gold rush, having organized the Bank of California and been its president for many years. But the son came east, graduating from Harvard in 1878.

Ogden Mills' first business experience was with his father, who, in 1880, returned to New York. At the death of D. O. Mills, the son took over his large interest which included directorship in a number of large corporations.

At the same time he had managed his father's estate, become president of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., and also served as president of the New York Tribune Inc.

As his business interest grew, Ogden Mills increased his interest in the arts. He was a member of the American Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art and added to the prized collections in both places.

Among Mills' public gifts were educational and public endowments. Mills' activities in the field of sports were principally with horses.

"Schrimper and Gruber told him that that was all right as Harry D. Silver and Senator Fess' secretary were to see Woodruff."

"Then Buckley offered to introduce them to Eckhart," Brumbaugh said.

Struck Five Autos in a Row

Miss Mary Elizabeth Culbertson, 26, daughter of the late Senator Charles A. Culbertson of Texas, is shown leaving Washington, D. The court acquiesced in her demand for a jury trial.

RELIEF RUSHED TO VILLAGE CUT OFF BY SNOW; DRIFTS ATTACKED

EARLVILLE, Ia., Jan. 29.—A motor pool, aided by horse teams and shovel crews, today attacked the ten-foot snow barrier which for ten days has isolated the village of Coleburg, eleven miles east of here.

The rescue workers were handicapped by temperatures ranging from zero to ten degrees below as they set out to re-establish communication with the snow-bound village.

While the snow-plow was working its way through huge drifts, teams of men on skis worked in relays transporting fuel and food to the 350 residents of the village.

Through a single telephone line, Coleburg's sole means of communication with the outside world, Mayor W. F. Hoot told authorities at Petersburg, Earlville and Cedar Rapids that unless food and fuel reached the village within twenty-four hours serious suffering would result. The mayor reported that illness had been confined to a minimum, and that there was little danger of deaths from disease.

Mayor Hoot said the fuel supply virtually was exhausted and that the supply of food was alarmingly low. He said all provisions had been pooled by the villagers and a committee appointed to dole out ration.

He said several volunteers had attempted to traverse the drifts to Petersburg, nine miles south of Coleburg, to obtain bread and coal but they were unable to penetrate the drifts.

Five villagers needing hospital care were taken on stretchers across country eleven miles to Grant highway and placed aboard waiting ambulances for Dubuque.

A bobbed, carrying food and medicines, reached Coleburg yesterday morning after battling the drifts for twenty-one hours. A rural mail carrier planned to leave from Dyersville for Coleburg today with mail which has been undelivered for ten days.

State highway authorities said they hoped to clear a path to the village within twenty-four hours.

PRINCE GETS ROYAL WELCOME FROM ONE; TO INSPECT MINES

Probes Conditions After Appeal For Relief Funds

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Jan. 29.—A royal welcome was accorded the Prince of Wales by a committee of one on his arrival here today to begin a visit of inspection to coal districts.

The Newcastle stationmaster, fitted out in the finery of a top hat, was alone on the platform when the prince and his two pet dogs left the train after an all-night ride from London.

A crowd of townsfolk who had arrived at his hotel early to greet the prince, doffed their hats and hurried him in unison as he entered. After his call on the Mayor, the Prince inspected a large warehouse, used as a clothes distributing center, before starting his visits to the miners.

The tour is expected to have the added value of bringing further unadmitted contributions to a fund being raised by the lord mayor of London. The fund already totals approximately $2,535,000 and the government has promised to match pound for pound subscribed.

SUBPOENA GOVERNOR IN CONSPIRACY CASE; SENATOR FESS NAMED

Harry D. Silver Also Mentioned In Testimony Against State Treasurer On Bribery Charge; Denies Connection

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—A trap set to catch State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley in an alleged plot to tip off Cincinnati breweries on contemplated raids was described at Buckley's trial for conspiracy to offer a bribe today.

John Eckhart, federal prohibition officer, whom Buckley is charged with attempting to bribe, said the state treasurer was induced to come to Eckhart's home and induced to repeat the details of his plot. Two dictaphone microphones were installed in the room and three prohibition department attaches listened in on the conversation.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—Governor Myers Y. Cooper will be called as a witness in the trial of State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, Federal District Attorney Haveth E. Mau announced today. U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, who with Governor Cooper, was mentioned in initial testimony, will not be called, Mau said.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—The trial of State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, on charges of conspiracy to offer a bribe, was resumed today with the names of five prominent Republicans injected into the testimony.

John F. Eckhart, assistant regional federal prohibition enforcement chief, the first witness for the government, brought in the names of Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Senator Simeon D. Fess and Federal Judge Benson W. Hough, who is presiding at the trial.

Robert M. Brumbaugh, of Dayton, one of Buckley's attorneys, in his opening statement to the jury, brought in the names of Harry D. Silver, finance director in Governor Cooper's cabinet, and Edward Martin, secretary to Senator Fess.

Eckhart brought in the names of Cooper and Fess while testifying to a conversation he said he had with Buckley on October 8, 1928, in the state treasurer's office, regarding a raid which was made on the Jackson Brewing Company plant in Cincinnati on October 5, by federal prohibition agents.

"Buckley called me to his office and said he understood federal agents had raided the Jackson Brewing Company," Eckhart said. "I told him the agents had made an inspection."

"Buckley told me the raid or inspection had created quite a stir in Cincinnati, asked me what could be done about it, and said that some 'higher ups' had been to see him about it."

"He told me the 'higher ups' were Myers Y. Cooper, who was a candidate for governor, and U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess," Eckhart testified.

Eckhart brought in the name of Judge Hough while testifying concerning a conversation with Buckley during which he claimed the state treasurer gounded him out on supplying tips of intended raids and inspections of Cincinnati breweries. Eckhart claimed Buckley "made him a proposition."

"I at once tried to find my superior officer, William N. Woodruff, to tell him of my conversation with Buckley," Eckhart said. "I failed to find Woodruff that day or the next. I also failed to get in touch with assistant U. S. District Attorney Fardels. Then I telephoned to Federal Judge Hough and the next day I saw him and told him my story. Acting on his advice I went straight to Woodruff with the whole thing," Eckhart said.

Brumbaugh brought in the names of Silver and Martin when he told the jury the defense expects to prove that Buckley's real connection with John L. Schrimper and Joseph Gruber, both of Cincinnati, was to introduce them, at their request, to Eckhart so they could talk to Eckhart about the raids on the Jackson Brewing Co.

Schrimper, an attorney and former member of the legislature, was indicted with Buckley, but entered a plea of guilty when he was raised and is to testify for the government, according to District Attorney Mau.

Gruber also an attorney, was named a co-conspirator by the federal grand jury, but was not indicted.

"Gruber and Schrimper came to Buckley's office to talk about the raid which had been made on the Jackson Brewing Co.," Brumbaugh explained.

"That was on October 10. They told Buckley that at the suggestion of two Hamilton County judges and some others the brewing company had made some 'real' beer which was to be put on an American Legion special train leaving October 8, for the national convention in San Antonio, Texas."

"They said they were fearful for what the federal prohibition enforcement branch might do about finding the 'real' beer, and thought if they could be put in touch with some person in that department they could lay their cards on the table and maybe the government wouldn't be so hard on them."

"Buckley told Schrimper and Gruber he did not know Woodruff," Brumbaugh explained.

"Schrimper and Gruber told him that that was all right as Harry D. Silver and Senator Fess' secretary were to see Woodruff."

"Then Buckley offered to introduce them to Eckhart," Brumbaugh said.

Testifying as to the alleged attempt by Buckley to bribe him, Eckhart said:

"On October 13, 1928 Buckley phoned me to come to his office and get some of the campaign cards to give out. He was in his hotel at his campaign for re-election."

"On my arrival Buckley showed me a huge pile of envelopes which he said contained his campaign literature."

"Buckley, pointing to the pile of envelopes, said there was a lot of money and work represented there, but that he wanted to get a big vote and would later run for governor or United States Senator."

"He told me of all the political influence he wielded in Ohio. He said if he were elected to the senate or governorship he would care for all of his friends."

"Then Buckley said to me, John, the proposition I am going to make to you, they will pay you, through me, $200 a month, if you will tip them off when the federal officers

OGDEN MILLS DIES;
WAS FINANCIER, ART
LOVER, SPORTSMAN

Father Of Treasury Assistant Known As Philanthropist

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Ogden Mills, financier, philanthropist, sportsman and lover of the arts, died early today at the age of 73. Mills had been ill more than three weeks. An attack of bronchitis developed into pneumonia, which in turn was followed by erysipelas. Two blood transfusions failed to save his life.

Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, was with his father during the final hours of his life. A daughter, the Countess of Grand, also was present.

The son of Darius Ogden Mills, he was born in Sacramento, Calif., in 1856. O. D. Mills had been active in California in the first days of the gold rush, having organized the Bank of California and been its president for many years. But his son came east, graduating from Harvard in 1878.

Ogden Mills' first business experience was with his father, who, in 1880, returned to New York. At the death of D. O. Mills, the son took over his large interests which included directorship in a number of large corporations.

At the same time he had managed his father's estate, became president of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., and also served as president of the New York Tribune Inc.

As his business interests grew, Ogden Mills increased his interest in the arts. He was a member of the American Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art and added to the museum's collections in both places.

Among his public gifts were educational and public endowments. Mills' activities in the field of sports were principally with horses. Mills' wife, the former Ruth Livingston, died of heart disease in 1926. They had three children—Beatrice, now the Countess of Grand; Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phillips; and Ogden Livingston.

SANITY COMMISSION CLAIMS SLAYER IS "DANGEROUS MORON"

CANTON, O., Jan. 29.—Edward Kaltenbaugh, 22-year-old Grove City, Pa., youth, who confessed killing John Oser, Canal Fulton dairyman, and his wife, Bertha, "is a type of moron extremely dangerous to be at large," a sanity commission appointed by the court announced today.

The youth was captured hiding in his home shortly after the double murder early this month. He later confessed, declaring he killed the Oses because he wanted their automobile "to take my girl for a ride." He was charged with first degree murder and the court appointed the sanity commission to examine him.

Kaltenbaugh has a low degree of mentality and is of the type of moron extremely dangerous to be at large," the commission said. "He has no sense of responsibility for his crime."

If the commission's findings are sustained the boy will never go to trial but will be committed to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Lima.

Three alienists composed the commission. They were Drs. Guy Williams of the Cleveland State Hospital; William Pritchard of the Columbus State Hospital, and Dr. W. H. Vorbau, superintendent of the Lima institution.

A formal insanity hearing will be held February 11. At that time County Prosecutor Henry W. Hatter will determine whether the youth will be sent to the asylum or stand trial.

MAP SHOWS OHIO GRADE CROSSING TRAGEDIES

This map shows the number of motorists in each county instantly killed at railroad crossings from 1924 to 1928.

Grade crossing tragedies numbered eighteen in Greene County in the four years from 1924 to 1928, according to statistics prepared by the Ohio State Automobile Association and disclosed on the above map.

This is almost as many as occurred in Clark County, is more than twice the number in Miami County, nine times as many as in Clinton County, almost twice the number as in Fayette County, six times as many as in Highland County and nine times as many as in Warren County.

The auto association points out that trains approach a crossing at the rate of eighty-eight feet a second based on a speed of sixty miles an hour, or almost that fast if the train is traveling only forty to fifty miles an hour.

The association claims whistling posts still in use were established in horse and buggy days, and with autos traveling much faster, motorists should not depend on the train whistle for warning. Until elimination of grade crossings is brought about, the state association urged motorists to be attentive to the "Stop, Look and Listen" signs at crossings.

There were 1,288 deaths at grade crossings in Ohio during the years from 1924 to October 1, 1928, with Franklin County first with 77.

COMPULSORY BIBLE READING PROPOSED IN NEW HOUSE BILL

cial automobiles are sold on this graduated scale now, but the charge for licenses for pleasure cars was made the same for a year or any fraction, when the gasoline tax law was enacted.

The bill sponsored by the organized automobile clubs to do away with the present thirty-five mile an hour speed limit for automobiles in Ohio was introduced by Rep. Elmer E. Boden, of Akron.

If enacted in its present form, the bill probably would operate to limit speed on highways outside cities to forty-five miles an hour.

Persons driving at an excessive low speed and thereby clogging traffic on highways would be liable to penalties.

Rep. David S. Ingalls, Cleveland, introduced a bill to permit cities to borrow money for current operating expenses when 75 per cent or more of their tax revenues are required in any year to pay interest and sinking fund charges of their bonded indebtedness and there will be a shortage of funds for other purposes.

Rep. S. K. Mardis, Athens County, sponsored a bill to permit a special tax levy of three mills for school purposes outside present limitations whenever necessary and approved by the county budget commission. Boards of education would be authorized to employ dentists, dental hygienists and assistants for health work among public school pupils, under provisions of a bill by Mrs. Elma P. Valentine, Franklin County representative.

Rep. Herman L. Vail, Cleveland, introduced the uniform veterans' guardianship law, proposed by the national conference of commissioners uniform state laws and backed by the American Legion.

Term of township clerks and trustees would be increased from two years to four years, beginning in 1929, under a bill by Rep. George M. Forney, Hancock County.

First revenue raising measure of the session was introduced by Rep. G. E. Sharp, Vinton County. It proposes a tax of five per cent on the gross receipts of theaters, amusement parks, movie houses and all other commercialized amusement places.

are going to make raids or inspections."

"I didn't say anything for a while," Eckhart said, and then Buckley asked me if that proposition had 'stunned me'.

"I told him that it had stunned me, that I had held different offices of trust in my time and that I had never been approached nor accepted a dollar from anybody.

"I told Buckley," Eckhart said, "that I was fifty-nine years old, too old to commence now, and that I didn't want to land in the penitentiary."

Buckley said he didn't want to land in the pen either.

Then Buckley said, 'that puts a different light on the subject. We intended to split the money three ways and I expected some for campaign expenses.'

"I then told Buckley I might let him know in advance about raids and inspections, and that I had helped other friends in a like manner before."

"I never have done such a thing, though."

"After our conversation I went immediately to get in touch with Woodruff to tell him," Eckhart said.

Eckhart told of meeting Schrimper and Gruber through Buckley on October 10 and of the Cincinnati men telling him of the raid on the Jackson Brewing Company.

Eckhart told them, he said, that he had nothing to do with that case, but that it was up to Woodruff. He told them, he said, he would let them know the date of the hearings on whether the brewery licenses were to be revoked or not.

On Nov. 6, election day, Eckhart met with Buckley in the latter's office, he testified. Then he told Buckley to tell the Cincinnati men that the hearing was to be Nov. 9.

At that time Buckley told him, Eckhart testified, that his campaign for reelection had cost him between $3,000 and $4,000 and that the Cincinnati breweries had "helped him out."

At that meeting, acting on orders of Woodruff to pretend to carry out the deal, Eckhart made arrangements to keep in touch with Buckley, who was leaving for a tour of the south, and notify him of intended raids.

Code telegrams were agreed upon, Eckhart said.

Much of the remainder of his testimony had to do with identifying telegrams he said he received from Buckley from different southern cities, and identification of telegrams he said he sent to Buckley.

In his statement to the jury, Attorney Brumbaugh said his client's connection with the brewery case was without criminal knowledge and intent, which factors he said, the government must prove.

District Attorney Mau charged that the breweries were to pay $5 per barrel as protection money. Of that amount $2.50 was to go to Buckley, from which he was to pay $300 a month to Eckhart. The remaining $2.50 was to go to Schrimper and Gruber, he claimed.

Silver, in a statement today, said he merely introduced Schrimper and Gruber to Eckhart, secretary to Senator Fess, because they were desirous of meeting William N. Woodruff, federal prohibition commissioner for this district. Silver was not acquainted with Woodruff, he said, but knew that Martin was.

"They gave me their reason for wanting to see Woodruff," Silver said.

The association claims whistling posts still in use were established in horse and buggy days, and with autos traveling much faster, autoists should not depend on the train whistle for warning. Until elimination of grade crossings is brought about, the state association urged autoists to be attentive to the "Stop, Look and Listen" signs at crossings.

There were 1,288 deaths at grade crossings in Ohio during the years from 1924 to October 1, 1928, with Franklin County first with 17.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Better than a mustard plaster

COMPULSORY BIBLE READING PROPOSED IN NEW HOUSE BILL

cial automobiles are sold on this graduated scale now, but the charge for licenses for pleasure cars was made the same for a year or any fraction, when the gasoline tax law was enacted.

The bill sponsored by the organized automobile clubs to do away with the present thirty-five mile an hour speed limit for automobiles in Ohio was introduced by Rep. Elmer E. Boden, of Akron.

If enacted in its present form, the bill probably would operate to limit speed on highways outside cities to forty-five miles an hour. Persons driving at an excessively low speed and thereby clogging traffic on highways would be liable to penalties.

Rep. David S. Ingalls, Cleveland, introduced a bill to permit cities to borrow money for current operating expenses when 75 per cent or more of their tax revenues are required in any year to pay interest and sinking fund charges of their bonded indebtedness and there will be a shortage of funds for other purposes.

Rep. S. K. Mardis, Athens County, sponsored a bill to permit a special tax levy of three mills for school purposes outside present limitations whenever necessary and approved by the county budget commission. Boards of education would be authorized to employ dentists, dental hygienists and assistants for health work among public school pupils, under provisions of a bill by Mrs. Elma P. Valentine, Franklin County representative.

Rep. Herman L. Vail, Cleveland, introduced the uniform veterans' guardianship law, proposed by the national conference of commissioners uniform state laws and backed by the American Legion.

Term of township clerks and trustees would be increased from two years to four years, beginning in 1929, under a bill by Rep. George M. Forney, Hancock County.

First revenue raising measure of the session was introduced by Rep. G. E. Sharp, Vinton County. It proposes a tax of five per cent on the gross receipts of theaters, amusement parks, movie houses and all other commercialized amusement places.

are going to make raids or inspections. "I didn't say anything for a while," Eckhart said, and then Buckley asked me if that proposition had 'stunned me'.

"I told him that it had stunned me, that I had held different offices of trust in my time and that I had never been approached nor accepted a dollar from anybody.

"I told Buckley," Eckhart said, "that I was fifty-nine years old, too old to commence now, and that I didn't want to land in the penitentiary."

"Buckley said he didn't want to land in the pen either."

"Then Buckley said, 'that puts a different light on the subject. We intended to split the money three ways and I expected some for campaign expenses.'"

"I then told Buckley I might let him know in advance about raids and inspections, and that I had helped other friends in a like manner before."

"I never have done such a thing, though."

"After our conversation I went immediately to get in touch with Woodruff to tell him," Eckhart said.

Eckhart told of meeting Schrimper and Gruber through Buckley on October 10 and of the Cincinnati men telling him of the raid on the Jackson Brewing Company.

Eckhart told them, he said, that he had nothing to do with that case, but that it was up to Woodruff. He told them, he said, he would let them know the date of the hearings on whether the brewery licenses were to be revoked or not.

On Nov. 6, election day, Eckhart met with Buckley in the latter's office, he testified. Then he told Buckley to tell the Cincinnati men that the hearing was to be Nov. 9.

At that time Buckley told him, Eckhart testified, that his campaign for re-election had cost him between $3,000 and $4,000 and that the Cincinnati breweries had "helped him out."

At that meeting, acting on orders of Woodruff to pretend to carry out the deal, Eckhart made arrangements to keep in touch with Buckley, who was leaving for a tour of the south, and notify him of intended raids.

Code telegrams were agreed upon, Eckhart said.

Much of the remainder of his testimony had to do with identifying telegrams he said he received from Buckley from different southern cities, and identification of telegrams he said he sent to Buckley.

In his statement to the jury, Attorney Brumbaugh said his client's connection with the brewery case was without criminal knowledge and intent, which factors he said, the government must prove.

District Attorney Mau charged that the breweries were to pay $5 per barrel as protection money. Of that amount $2.50 was to go to Buckley, from which he was to pay $300 a month to Eckhart. The remaining $2.50 was to go to Schrimper and Gruber, he claimed.

Silver, in a statement today, said he merely introduced Schrimper and Gruber to Edward Martin, secretary to Senator Fess, because they were desirous of meeting William N. Woodruff, federal prohibition commissioner for this district. Silver was not acquainted with Woodruff, he said, but knew that Martin was.

"They gave me their reason for wanting to see Woodruff," Silver said.

Does his mother realize?

Considerate mothers will act at once.

Constipation will blunt the keenest intellect, and many a child is classed as "dull" through bowels failing to act regularly. They need mother's watchful care. If your child is listless, dull and out-of-sorts, it means that the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Just give a dose of "California Fig Syrup" and soon all the sour bile and irritating poison are moved from the bowels, and the child is bright and energetic again. "California Fig Syrup" cleans and regulates the bowels, and insures pure blood, clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and promotes sturdy growth. To be sure that the Fig Syrup you buy is the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package. —Adv.

Poems that Live

BIRDS are singing around my window,
Tunes the sweetest ever heard,
And I hang my cage there daily,
But I never catch a bird.
So with thoughts my brain is peopled,
And they sing their all day long;
But they will not fold their pinions
—In the little cage of Song!

OVERHEAD STEALS

Too large an overhead was one of the main reasons why some Greene County farmers lost money on their farming operations in 1928. Figures show that insufficient business was done on their farms to pay taxes, allow for depreciation on buildings and machinery, allow 4 per cent interest on capital invested and pay other farm expenses.

These facts were brought out in the analyses of the records of a group of Greene County farmers during the past year. These records also show that farmers who have kept records for several years are increasing their farm income by being able to locate the profitable and unprofitable practices.

The records kept by these men are but a simple record of receipts and expenses, together with a farm inventory at the beginning and end of the year.

Arrangements are being made by County Agricultural Agent E. A. Drake for holding a farm account school in the assembly room of the Court House, Thursday, January 31 at 7:30 p. m.

HOPE TO SAVE LIFE OF CHILD WANING

PERRY, Kan., Jan. 29.—Margaret Brown, 7, who has lived for eleven days on administrations of oxygen and transfused blood, is failing rapidly, physicians reported today.

Physicians said that the girl had failed to rally after two blood transfusions late yesterday, and that her condition would not permit another transfusion, deemed necessary to prolong her life.

Margaret contracted pneumonia more than two weeks ago. Ten days ago physicians found it necessary to establish drainage from the lung cavity to prevent suffocation. When drainage efforts proved fruitless, firemen began artificial respiration.

Physicians said Margaret had remained in a comatose state since Sunday night. Prior to that time she had been conscious for brief intervals.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Brown submitted to blood transfusions yesterday.

Firemen D. W. Schuberg and

Dean Way, who began administration of oxygen ten days ago, have refused to be relieved and continue their work in twelve hour shifts.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing. Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quantity of finely cracked ice—about a wineglassful. Pour over it a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Stir slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

With every bottle of Phillips Milk of Magnesia, come full directions for its many uses. All drug stores have the 25c and 50c sizes. Demand the genuine, endorsed by doctors for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

Does his mother realize?

Considerate mothers will act at once.

Constipation will blunt the keenest intellect, and many a child is classed as "dull" through bowels failing to act regularly. They need mother's watchful care.

If your child is listless, dull and out-of-sorts, it means that the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Just give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and soon all the sour bile and irritating poison are moved from the bowels, and the child is bright and energetic again.

"California Fig Syrup" cleans and regulates the bowels, and insures pure blood, clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and promotes sturdy growth.

To be sure that the Fig Syrup you buy is the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package.

BIRDS are singing around my window,

Tunes the sweetest ever heard, And I hang my cage there daily, But I never catch a bird.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A GREAT CALAMITY—The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.—Jeremiah 8:20.

MADE-TO-ORDER CLIMATES

ASTOUNDING strides in scientific progress which will make present day civilization seem quaint and primitive are in store for the world during the next century, in the opinion of the Earl of Birkenhead, distinguished British educator and statesman.

Lord Birkenhead, after a study of the researches and experiments being made by foremost scientists in applied physics, chemistry and biology, asserts that the world may look forward to such amazing changes as 150 years of life for every man, the harnessing of atomic energy which will almost free man from work and enable him to alter climate and geography at will.

And this comes from a man who is not a dreamer or fanatic. He recently resigned as secretary of state for India, and his career includes such posts as that of Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, High Steward of Oxford university and rector of Glasgow university.

The utilization of the tremendous atomic energy, equal to 10,000,000 horsepower hours, known to be contained in a single pound of water will work the greatest physical changes, Lord Birkenhead believes.

This problem will be solved by 2029, he forecasts. "It will then be open to men radically to alter the climate and geography of the world," he says. "By utilizing 50,000 tons of water, it would be possible to remove Ireland to the deeper portion of the Atlantic. The heat from the same quantity of water would maintain the polar regions at the temperature of the Sahara for 1,000 years."

Since the Earl of Birkenhead knows how these things should be done he might go ahead and do them since he has given up his other job and now has time.

HOUSE COOLING BY GAS

According to a recent announcement, house cooling by means of gas is to be studied by gas engineers and experts. The industry is interested in this potential phase of gas and is preparing for an extensive research program.

Gas as a cooling agency has already been proved cheap, efficient and reliable, in mechanical refrigerators. By application of such principles it is hoped that a cooling system for homes, suitable for commercial production, will be evolved.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK.—John Barrymore, any one tell you, is a caustic guy. His pet aversion is a person who gushes over him, and he always squelches them viciously. He considers press agents another low form of astral life (as who doesn't?), and once discharged his exploiters with this cruel mouthing: "Get out! I am only interested in magnates and women, and you are neither!"

INCIDENTALLY—Then there was the time, after a performance of "Peter Ibbotson," during which the scenery kept falling down. His leading lady, Constance Collier, came to him and fluttered: "Oh, Mr. Barrymore! Wasn't it simply wonderful? If there is such a thing as a spirit coming back, then I know Du Maurier was here tonight!" "If he was," grumbled the star, "he got hit on the head."

OF ALL CRACKS—To hear some of his admirers argue it, Grover Whalen is New York's best police commissioner since Barnum.

NEW YEAR VERSE (For G. L. R.)—This is a prayer, my own dear heart, Spun through the threads of yesterday, . . . . . And we shall whisper it each hour To spirit ev' thoughts away.

When bitter words come plunging down The rocky paths of Temper land, We'll count the beads of Tolerance, And cling to Reason's blessed hand. . . . .

Or when Love's fear is magnified In Doubt's false mirror, we shall pray, Belief must overshadow all— Did we not learn this yesterday?

Forgiveness wears a timeless crown And Faith brings Beauty in her train, So yesterday's mistakes, my dear, Are all tomorrow's gain! —Junetta Clivette.

OF ALL THINGS—It is Madeline Cameron's contribution, and deals with the linotype on a newspaper who made an appropriate error while setting a story about a man who was seeking a divorce. The line read: "And the plaintiff asked the court for a change of Venus."

NONSENSE—Al Klein would have you believe that a Bronx bird store owner advertised for a ventriloquist to officiate as parrot salesman.

THEN HE HUNG UP—The Blue Gator, a college mag, now offers it, but the New Yorker peddled it a year or so ago. It concerns the telephone company official who was rudely aroused from his slumbers by the ringing of the phone. "Hello!" he growled. "Are you an official of the telephone company?" asked a voice. "Yes. What can I do for you?" queried the official. "Tell me," was the sarcastic answer, "how does it feel to get out of bed at 3 in the morning to answer a wrong number?"

ADD SIMILES—And George Hamilton Knight offers a simile that Frank W. Stach is used to use in his next book of them. It is: "Closer than a florist shop is to a hospital."

PLUS THE JED HARRIS TOUCH—The better grade of entertainment has been revived again at the Morosco Theater, where Jed Harris deftly sponsors "Second Blandish." This is S. N. Blandish's dramatization of the novel by an anonymous author, and while the denouement is a little tame, the parents of the immense "Second Man" has once more revealed his skill. It is crowded with smartest suavity and sparkling wit, and the first scene attendance appeared here, self-satisfied and amused by it.

"Serena," therefore, is recommended, with no reservations, to that army of adults and sophists who so passionately resounded to "The Play's the Thing" and Mr. Behrman's last Guild success. Mr. Harris obviously designed it for that trade. It also brings back from too long an absence the delightful Ruth Gordon, who is at her best throughout the proceedings, and it is a trying role. The cast almost all British one, contributes immense support, and the Jed Harris manner always prevails.

BATTLES

Speaking of the battle of Marathon in which the Greek overthrew invaders from Asia, Ceraeus, great historian said: "It secured for mankind the intellectual treasures of Athens, the growth of free institutions, the liberal enlightenment of the western world, and the gradual ascendancy for many years of the great principles of European civilization."

In a measure this is true. As much might be said for other really decisive battles. And yet it has by no means been always by battles that civilization has come up the hill. The battle of Waterloo was fought in 1815. It is a date history teachers are likely to be insistent about. But the battle of Waterloo is not the most significant thing about the year 1815. In that year Sir Humphry Davy invented the enclosed safety lamp for miners. And that invention probably had a greater effect on the building of industrial material civilization than the battle of Waterloo.

WHAT INGERSOLL SAID

Ever today mention of James G. Blaine, so long the leader of the Republican party, statesman of the seventies, the eighties, and the nineties, brings up the phrase "the plumed knight." It is vaguely known by many readers of this newspaper that Ingersoll first used the phrase. Other readers remember it distinctly. What were the circumstances? Ingersoll at the Cincinnati convention which nominated Hayes put the name of Blaine before the delegates. He said, concluding his speech: "Like an armed warrior, like a plumed knight, James G. Blaine marched down the halls of the American congress and threw his shining lance full and fair against the brazen forehead of every traitor to his country. In the name of the great republic, the only republic that ever existed on the face of the earth; in the name of all her defenders and all her supporters; in the name of all the soldiers living; in the name of her soldiers who died upon the field of battle; in the name of those who perished in the skeleton clutch of famines at Andersonville and Libby, whose sufferings he so vividly remembers, Illinois nominates that prince of parliamentarians, the leader of leaders—James G. Blaine."

INCOME TAX PROBLEM DISCUSSED

By OGDEN L. MILLS
Undersecretary of the U. S. Treasury.

(Ogden Livingston Mills was born at Newport, R. I. August 29, 1884. He was graduated from Harvard and admitted to the bar in 1908 and since then has practiced in New York City. He was defeated for election to congress in 1912 and served as a member of the state senate from 1914 to 1916. Serving with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the war, he was commissioned a captain in the army. He was elected to congress in 1921, served six years, and then resigned to accept the office of undersecretary of the treasury. His home is in New York City.)

The department of the treasury is hopeful that the recent decision of the supreme court in the question of tax refunds may result in a definite statement of policy on the larger question of whether the income tax shall continue to be handled by the executive branch of the government or shall be placed completely under the control of the judiciary.

It is neither my purpose nor desire to promote or encourage the more active interest of lawyers as a class in income tax matters. Quite the contrary.

From my standpoint, lawyers who like litigation—those representing the government as well as those representing taxpayers—have had altogether too much to do with the income tax from the very outset. What was fundamentally an administrative problem developed almost at once into an unlimited and interminable series of legal battles. The substitution of administration for litigation is the essence of our present income tax problem.

If litigation is to be avoided, if tax cases are to be settled with promptness and certainty, the ultimate responsibility must definitely rest on the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Its employees must recognize that responsibility and be willing to assume it, and they must receive the wholehearted support and encouragement of those at the top. There need be no fear of laxity, carelessness or failure to protect the interests of the government. We are proceeding cautiously, slowly, and with adequate checks and review in all cases. The bureau is at least as well equipped as the courts to reach sound determinations.

Consider the case in the light of some of the remarks he makes. One of his most recent ones positively was a record breaker.

Doc Work, as we all know, resigned as secretary of the interior to take on the job of Herbert's campaign manager. Considerable of his leftover business, as a cabinet member, remained for him to discuss in retrospect, following retirement—a few little oil leases and other similar matters.

Among them was the administration of the office of Indian affairs, one of the interior departmental subdivisions.

At the head of the Indian office was—and is—Charles H. Burke Indian commissioner.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Now we come to face lines. The horizontal and vertical lines which we see so frequently are the unmistakable lines of age and disposition. Commonest among them, to start at the top, are the frown lines. Frown lines, being to some extent bad expression lines, can be controlled by determination and self will. Once they are in, however, and have left a permanent mark on your complexion, the time has arrived to think seriously about good correctives. You can iron out frown lines through skillful massage. Since, as the lines run horizontally, I suggest that you use circular massage movements to counteract them. With a gentle pressure of the palms of your hands, work in smooth, upward strokes, massaging a small amount of nourishing cream into the surface. If you do this two or three times a day, you should have no more frown lines in a moderately short number of weeks, or months.

The next lines are also horizontal, and these are the well-known crow's-feet. There are two methods of correcting this condition. The first is massage, and the second is through the use of a nightly eye cream. Naturally enough, to combine the two methods is to achieve best and quickest results. Here are some massage movements for the correction of crow's-feet. With the cushioned top of your middle finger, massage in a rotary movement all around the eye circle. Then, beginning with the outer end of the eye, using a well creamed finger, work in tiny upward circles wherever the crow's-feet are visible.

Mouth lines, as we all know, are mostly expression lines. However, there are little vertical lines around the lips which come from puckering or from pressing the mouth into too severe lines from bad temper or through tremendous and visible efforts at self control. These lines, even though they signify some expression all your own, nevertheless spoil the beauty of even the most gentle mouth. Correct these lines by starting with two fingers, well greased with anti-wrinkle cream, and working in a circle from the center of your chin around the corners of your mouth to the bend, where the beauty cleft is. Use a firm, even pressure and repeat this at least a dozen times on each occasion.

Remember that almost all of the disfiguring lines in your face come from improper action in the early days, when neglect shows only in the shadow of what the years will bring. There is no better safeguard to beauty than to begin in youth to preserve the smoothness which is Nature's gift to us, and one which I hope will not be sacrificed through ignorance and carelessness.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Herbert Hoover has a passion for competent assistants.

Indeed, one of the counts in the indictment which detractors prefer against him is that he is a man who is not content with the various remarkable achievements which are attributed to him—that all the real work which has entered into the building up of every emergency he has encountered.

Of course such talk is silly—only proving him a wonderful executive.

This being the case—Will somebody kindly account for Doc Work?—as Herbert's political manager.

If ever there appeared to be a political babe in the woods, by common Washington agreement it is that Colorado doctor.

It may be contended that the obvious answer to this verdict is to be found in the last election result—the doc was chairman of Herbert's campaign committee, and how did the election come out?

To the superficial mind, perhaps that's an adequate explanation—the doc delivers the goods regardless of the politicians' poor opinion of him.

Deeper thinkers will be fooled by no such sophistry. Their judgment will be that Herbert made his historic clean-up not because of Doc Work, but in spite of him.

At this point, Attorney General Sargent rises to state that he did call off his dog permanently—but he did call him off temporarily.

Query—Was Secretary Work's idea in asking Attorney General Sargent to call his dog off from Commissioner Burke?

Why—as Doc Work explains it—Burke explained (to Doc Work) that the whole thing was "a political feud" against him (Burke). Who explained it to Doc Work? Burke (the accused) did.

Can you beat it?

There is, however, a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue.—Burke.

Miss N.—Such cases as yours are puzzling. I don't know why you should choose some particular location to deposit itself. Some physicians believe that when the fat has a disposition to settle in certain localities, especially in the hips and legs, there may be a disturbance of the pituitary gland. Have you ever been to a physician who specializes in internal medicine? He might be able to help you.

Meanwhile, the vibratory machine you have purchased may help you. Keep it up faithfully every day, but don't expect to see results for three months or perhaps longer. Then you ought to do some rolling exercises—lie on your back and roll over on your side and do a lot of kicking exercises, the scissors movements, and doing back and forth, etc. You have some dietetic sin which you have got to ferret out and eliminate entirely. Remember you are tiny and you never can eat liberally. If you gain, it shows you are eating more than you need, always.

You wanted to know how you could lose in measurements and still gain in weight. Muscle tissue weighs heavier than fat tissue and takes up less space. That is the answer to that question. Have you our pamphlet of instructions on how to reduce and gain, and our article on the Atonic Abdominal Wall which gives the Tummy Ten exercises?

She had terrible pains in her stomach the next day and after, and her spine hurt her somewhat. However, the pains soon left her, but after she returned home, after 10 days, some blood passed from her. She noticed it for two days, but now it has stopped.

"I would like to know whether that could be cancer of the womb or if you think it was the result of the jolting she got? When cancer of the womb is present, does blood pass?" "A."

Any passing of blood (or other discharge) after the menopause should be investigated, A., for it is one of the symptoms of cancer.

It may also be a symptom of some other condition that is not cancer, but the thing to do is to have an examination immediately so that treatment can be given. It may be possible that your mother's jolt caused some little injury. In any case, heed my advice.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A girl wants to know why a young man paid a great deal of attention for months, almost proposed, took an affectionate farewell, and then never came back, and merely says "hello" when they meet. My guess is that he is the kind of man who likes a girl just as long as matters do not get too serious. But he has no intention of taking on the responsibilities of matrimony, and when he found he was getting fond of the girl and might be hurt by his emotion to escape, he cooled off. And, further, I think that she had better set her heart on some other young man and let this one go his untrammelled way. Of course it is unfortunate that she loves him, but if he did have a brain storm and ask her to marry him, she would get him to the altar, and she would probably be the "roped in" and refer to her as his "ball and chain."

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: A little over two years ago I met a young man with whom I fell in love. He was a very narrow escape with you, as he began to care. I presume the secret of it is that he thinks more of himself than he does or can of anybody else. It might be possible of course, that there is some other reason why he cannot marry. Maybe he has a real active to support, or something. You might make inquiries if you do not know his people. If not, as I say, try hard to forget him and get interested in someone else. As long as you think he may come back you will think you are in love with him, but if you make up your mind that he loves only himself, let him be a help. As to the boys taking you riding, I don't know why they do, but maybe they like to talk to you and think they'll have more chance when you are riding.

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE SMALL BROWN "STUMP"

RUNS AWAY

It was on a brisk fall morning that Peter started for the forest. As he trudged through the thick leaves he remembered the day he had saved the life of the Old Oak Tree, and the tree, in gratitude, had given him the magic power of speech with all the birds of the air and creatures of the field and forest. His fingers caressed the tail of a blue lizard which kept him from harm in his wanderings.

At the edge of the woods he spied a beautiful tree in its autumn dress.

"Why, that tree looks just as if it was on fire!" cried Peter, looking at its leaves which had turned a brilliant red.

"And that little tree over in the corner—it shines like a pile of gold! Ooh! whoever would think that an old stump could be as pretty as that stump yonder! Why, the moss on it is as green as if it was the middle of summer. How glad I am that I chose this woods. If it is as lovely as this outside, what will it be in among the trees? I'll bet there'll be lots of things to see."

With a shout the boy dashed straight into the woods, sniffing up the dried leaves as he ran and laughing just for the joy of being a boy in the open on such a beautiful day.

But by and by, as he went farther and farther into the woods, it grew quieter and quieter, and by and by the boy grew quiet, too. It didn't seem just right, somehow, to make a noise that would wake the stillness.

"I guess I'll make believe I am an Indian," said the boy under his breath, and he stepped softly upon the leaves, trying his very best not to make them rustle. There was something on the ground in front of him that looked like a brown stump. What was it? Peter crept forward to see.

Nearer and nearer crept Peter toward the queer brown hummock. At last he stretched out his hand to touch it, when something happened that made his heart jump up into his throat. So startled was he that he didn't notice an old tree root sprang across his path, and down Peter went, head over heels among the leaves.

"Quit! Quit! Quit!" The small brown stump that wasn't a stump at all kicked up the leaves all about it, throwing some into Peter's eyes, and away it ran as fast as it could tear, scolding the boy for disturbing the peace.

Peter sat up and brushed himself. "That is the worst fright I have had yet," remarked he, aloud.

"Playing with the bugs and birds as long as I have ought to make me used to most anything, but I am never ready for these all of a sudden folk. Now, who could that creature that I took for a stump have been? Why couldn't he have made himself known without rushing off like that?"

MADE-TO-ORDER CLIMATES

Astounding strides in scientific progress which will make present day civilization seem quaint and primitive are in store for the world during the next century, in the opinion of the Earl of Birkenhead, distinguished British educator and statesman.

Lord Birkenhead, after a study of the researches and experiments being made by foremost scientists in applied physics, chemistry and biology, asserts that the world may look forward to such amazing changes as 150 years of life for every man, the harnessing of atomic energy which will almost free man from work and enable him to alter climate and geography at will.

And this comes from a man who is not a dreamer or fanatic. He recently resigned as secretary of state for India, and his career includes such posts as that of Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, High Steward of Oxford university and rector of Glasgow university.

The utilization of the tremendous atomic energy, equal to 10,000,000 horsepower hours, known to be contained in a single pound of water will work the greatest physical changes, Lord Birkenhead believes.

This problem will be solved by 2029, he forecasts. "It will then be open to men radically to alter the climate and geography of the world," he says. "By utilizing 50,000 tons of water, it would be possible to remove Ireland to the deeper portion of the Atlantic. The heat from the same quantity of water would maintain the polar regions at the temperature of the Sahara for 1,000 years."

Since the Earl of Birkenhead knows how these things should be done he might go ahead and do them since he has given up his other job and now has time.

HOUSE COOLING BY GAS

According to a recent announcement, house cooling by means of gas is to be studied by gas engineers and experts. The industry is interested in this potential phase of gas and is preparing for an extensive research program.

Gas as a cooling agency has already been proved cheap, efficient and reliable, in mechanical refrigerators. By application of such principles it is hoped that a cooling system for homes, suitable for commercial production, will be evolved.

The department of the treasury is hopeful that the recent discussion of the general problem of tax reform may result in a definite statement of policy on the larger question of whether the income tax shall continue to be handled by the executive branch of the government or shall be placed completely under the control of the judiciary.

It is neither my purpose nor desire to promote or encourage the more active interest of lawyers as a class in income tax matters. Quite the contrary. From my standpoint, lawyers who like litigation—those representing the government as well as those representing taxpayers—have had altogether too much to do with the income tax, from the very outset. What was fundamentally an administrative problem developed almost at once into an unlimited and interminable series of legal battles. The substitution of administration for litigation is the essence of our present income tax problem.

If litigation is to be avoided, if tax cases are to be settled with promptness and certainty, the ultimate responsibility must definitely rest on the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Its employees must recognize that responsibility and be willing to assume it, and they must receive the wholehearted support and encouragement of those at the top. There need be no fear of laxity, carelessness or failure to protect the interests of the government. We are proceeding cautiously, slowly, and with adequate checks and review in all cases. The bureau is at least as well equipped as the courts to reach sound determinations.

Consider the case—In the light of some of the remarks he makes, one of his recent ones positively was a record breaker. Do Work, as we all know, designed as secretary of the interior to take on the job of Herbert's campaign manager. Considerable of his leftover business, as a cabinet member, remained for him to discuss, in retrospect, following retirement—a few little old leaves and other similar matters.

Among them was the administration of the office of Indian affairs, one of the interior departmental subdivisions.

At the head of the Indian office was—and is—Charles H. Burke Indian commissioner.

There are a good many Indians in Oklahoma—formerly Indian territory. Commissioner Burke's methods in Oklahoma have been such that the department of justice had started an investigation into them—a grand jury investigation—with a view to indicting Mr. Burke—maybe.

Mr. Burke didn't like it. He appealed to Do Work, then interior secretary. The doc, as one cabinet member to another asked Attorney General Sargent head of the justice department, to call off his dog.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINE, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Now we come to face lines. The horizontal and vertical lines which we see so frequently are the unmistakable lines of age and disposition. Commonest among them, to start at the top, are the frown lines. Frown lines, being to some extent bad expression lines, can be controlled by determination and self will. Once they are in, however, and have left a permanent mark on your complexion, the time has arrived to think seriously about good correctives. You can iron out frown lines through skillful massage. Since, as the lines run horizontally, I suggest that you use circular massage movements to counteract them. With a gentle pressure of the palms of your hands, work in smooth, upward strokes, massaging a small amount of nourishing cream into the surface. If you do this two or three times a day, you should have no more frown lines in a moderately short number of weeks, or months.

The next lines are also horizontal, and these are the well-known crow's-feet. There are two methods of correcting this condition. The first is massage, and the second is through the use of a mildly eye cream. Naturally enough, to combine the two methods is to achieve best and quickest results. Here are some massage movements for the correction of crow's-feet. With the cushioned top of your middle

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Herbert Hoover has a passion for competent assistants.

Indeed, one of the counts in the indictment which detractors prefer against him is that he, personally (the said Herbert), is that the various remarkable achievements which are attributed to him—that all the real work which has entered into the remarkable efficient organizations he has been lucky (?) enough to build up in every emergency he has encountered.

Of course such talk is silly—no proving him a wonderful executive.

This being the case—Will somebody kindly account for Do Work?—as Herbert's political manager.

If ever there appeared to be a political babe in the woods, it is that Colorado doctor.

It may be contended that the obvious answer to this verdict is to be found in the last election result—the doc was chairman of Herbert's campaign committee—and how did the election come out?

To the superficial mind, perhaps that's an adequate explanation—the doc delivers the goods regardless of the politicians' poor opinion of him.

Deeper thinkers will be fooled by no such sophistry.

Their judgment will be that Herbert made his historic clean-up not because of Do Work, but in spite of him.

Consider the doc—in the light of some of the remarks he makes, one of his recent ones positively was a record breaker.

Do Work, as we all know, designed as secretary of the interior to take on the job of Herbert's campaign manager. Considerable of his leftover business, as a cabinet member, remained for him to discuss, in retrospect, following retirement—a few little old leaves and other similar matters.

Diet and Health

BY LILL HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Fat in Soots—Miss N.—Such cases as yours are puzzling. I don't know why you should choose some particular location to deposit itself. Physicians believe that when the fat has a disposition to settle in certain localities, especially in the hips and legs, there may be a disturbance of the pituitary gland. Have you ever been to a physician who specializes in internal medicine? He might be able to help you.

Meanwhile, the vibratory machine you have purchased may help you. Keep it up faithfully every day, but don't expect to see results for three months or perhaps longer. Then you ought to do some rolling exercises—lie on your back and roll over on your back, then back again. If you slide, do a lot of kicking exercises, the scissors movements, and kicking back and forth, etc.

You have some dietetic sin which you have got to ferret out and eliminate entirely. Remember you are thin and you never can get fat. If you gain, it shows you are eating more than you need, always.

You wanted to know how you could lose in measurements and still gain in weight. Muscle tissue weighs heavier than fat tissue and takes up less space. That is the answer to that question.

Have you our pamphlet of instructions on how to reduce and gain, and our article on the Abdominal Wall which gives the Tummy Tea exercises?

"Is yeast fattening?" L.—Yeast is high in the anti-nutrient and appetite-stimulating vitamin B. If the diet does not contain vitamin B, the addition of yeast may be helpful for it will stimulate the appetite. But it is much better for one to take the foods containing this vitamin, for in this way other valuable elements are taken also. The foods high in vitamin B are: Yeast and yeast extracts, tomatoes (raw, canned or dried), spinach, cabbage, beans.

One cake of yeast is 20 calories. "During the early part of the month, my mother took a motor trip of about 200 miles, and during the trip the machine was over a bump and caused her to be lifted off her seat so her head bumped the top of the machine when she came down she came down pretty hard. She had terrible pains in her stomach the next day and after that, her spine hurt her somewhat. However, it pains soon left her, but after she returned home, after 10 days, some blood passed from her. She noticed it for two days, but now it has stopped."

"I would like to know whether or not the cancer of the womb or if could be cancer of the womb, or if the cancer of the womb was the result of the falling of the womb. What cancer of the womb is present. Does blood pass?"

Any passing of blood (or other discharge) after the menopause should be investigated. A, for it is one of the symptoms of cancer.

It may also be a symptom of some other condition that is not cancerous, but the thing to do is to have an examination immediately so that treatment can be given. It may be possible that your mother's told caused some little injury. In any case, heed my advice.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A girl wants to know why a young man paid a great deal of attention for months, almost worshiped, took an affectionate farewell, and then never came back, and merely says "hello" when they meet. My guess is that he is the kind of man who likes a girl just so long as matters do not get too serious. But he has no intention of taking on the responsibilities of matrimony, and he is fond of the girl and might be led by his emotion to propose, he cooled off. And, further, I think that she had better set her heart on some other young man and let this one go his untrammelled way. Of course it is unfortunate that she has a brain storm and ask her to marry him, and she got him to the altar he would probably eternally be reminding her that he was "roped in," and refer to her as his "ball and chain."

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: A little over two years ago I met a young man with whom I fell in love. He was handsome, had a good position and all the qualities of a perfect gentleman, and he treated me wonderfully. We went together for about eight months and I was perfectly happy. I am sure that he cared a lot for me, and I even think that he started to propose one night, but caught himself just in time. After going with him for about eight months he acted rather peculiar one night, at the same time he was more devoted and sweeter than he had ever been. He acted as though he hated to part with me, and he mentioned nothing of not seeing me again, but that was the last time he took me out. The next day he didn't even speak to me. That was two years ago and I have seen him nearly every day since, and sometimes he will come out at times he will be polite as possible, but we never speak except to say "hello." I sometimes feel that he still cares about me, and would like to speak to me, for he even does things to draw my attention. At times I almost hate him and then again I feel I can't do without him, but my love has lasted during these two years and I can't help but feel that he will be convinced of his deceit and come back to me, for, in the long run, isn't it love that counts?"

"When I go out with the boys they seem to prefer going riding rather than going to a show or anywhere else. Why is this?" HOPING.

I really think, dear, that you would be happier in putting this young man right out of your life, as he apparently put you out of his. He evidently has made up his mind not to marry, and probably thinks he had a very narrow escape with you, as he began to care. I presume the secret of it is that he thinks more of himself than he does or can of anybody else. It might be possible of course, that there is some other reason why he can't marry. Maybe he has a relative to support, or something. You might make inquiries if you do not know his people. If not do as I say, try hard to forget him and get interested in someone else. As long as you think he may come back you will notice you are in love with him, but if you make up your mind that he loves only himself, it will be a help. As to the boys taking you riding, do that, maybe they like to talk to you and think they'll have more chance when you are riding.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE SMALL BROWN "STUMP" RUN AWAY—It was a bright fall morning when Peter started for a walk in the forest. As he trudged through the thick leaves he remembered the day he had saved the life of the Old Oak Tree, and the tree, in gratitude, had given him the magic of speech with all the birds of the air and creatures of the field and forest. His fingers caressed the tail of a blue lizard which kept him from harm in his wanderings.

At the edge of the woods he spied a beautiful tree in its autumn dress.

"Why, that tree looks just as if it was on fire!" cried Peter, looking at its leaves which Jack Frost, with his magic brush, had painted flame color.

"And that little tree over in the corner—it shines like a pile of gold! Ooh! whoever would think that an old stump could be as pretty as that 'stump yonder'! Why, the moss on it is just as green as if it was the middle of summer. How glad I am that I chose the woods. If it is as lovely as this outside, what will it be in among the trees? I'll be there'll be lots of things to see."

With a shout he dashed straight into the woods, scuffling up the dried leaves as he ran and laughing just for the joy of being a boy in the open on such a beautiful day.

But by and by, as he went farther and farther into the woods, it grew quiet and quieter and by and by the boy grew quiet. It didn't seem just right, somehow, to make a noise that would wake the stillness.

"I guess I'll make believe I am an Indian," said the boy under his breath, and he stepped softly upon the leaves, trying his very best not to make them rustle. There he stood, on a log, and the ground in front of him that looked like a brown stump. What was it? Peter crept forward to see.

FRAMED BY PHIL

Middletown High School's basketball team, which will attempt to snare the six-game winning streak of Xenia Central High's "Buccaneers" in a game on the Middle floor Friday night, has a record of seven victories and three defeats in ten starts already this season.

As an indication of the strength of the Middle quintet, it defeated Findlay High School 26 to 23 on the latter's court last Saturday night. Dayton Roosevelt was forced into an overtime period to defeat Findlay. That is as far as the comparison can go, however, as there seems to be no way to get a line on the relative merit of Roosevelt and Xenia.

On the preceding Friday night the Middle lost to Toledo Libby High at Toledo by a margin of 27 to 18.

Middletown appears to have lost most of its 1928 letter men as Ledford, who was a substitute forward last season, is the only regular this year who was a member of the team last season.

Ledford, high scorer of the 1928-29 Middle quintet, got into the Xenia-Middletown contest last season but failed to score a point.

Middletown will probably line up Friday night with Ledford and Johannes at Abel at forward, and Panklester at center, Richter and Finkleman or Holsinger at guards.

Drawings for the opening round of the annual Greene County Class B. High School Basketball Tournament which will be held at Xenia Central High gymnasium Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, will take place Monday afternoon, February 18 at the office of County School Superintendent H. C. Aultman.

The first round of the tournament will begin at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Boys and girls basketball teams of nine schools—Jamestown, Jefferson Twp., Ross Twp., Cedarville, Yellow Springs, Beavercreek, Bellbrook, Springfield Valley and Xenia—will participate in the event.

The two teams reaching the finals in the boys' division will represent Greene County in the Class B division of the Southwestern Ohio sectional tournament at Springfield March 1 and 2.

A. F. Roush, superintendent of Ross Twp. High School, who is manager of the tournament again this year, announced Tuesday that plans are tentatively being made for staging a foul shooting contest for both boys and girls teams in connection with the tournament.

Bath Twp. and the O. S. and S. O. Home basketball teams will not participate in the county tournament this year.

Last summer Bath Twp. automatically withdrew from the county unit when it applied and received exemption from county supervision, according to Superintendent Roush.

Bath Twp. has always been one of the leading contenders in the yearly tourney. Its boys' team reached the finals last year before being eliminated and the girls' team of the school has won the county championship in the feminine division for the last two years.

BOWERSVILLE WILL PLAY CAESARCREEK

Bowersville and Caesarcreek High School boys' and girls' basketball teams will meet in a double-header on the Caesar floor Friday night, February 1.

Caesar's boys' and girls' teams have each won four straight games. The girls' sextet has lost only one game this season, having won five out of six contests. The boys have been victorious in four out of six games.

In the first preliminary of the same evening, the Bowersville Independents will play the Caesarcreek Independents. This game will start at 7:30 o'clock and will be followed by the girls' game.

DON'T STAY FAT IN THESE DAYS

You see countless people who have gained new beauty, new health and vim, by fighting excess fat. Some have done this by abnormal exercise and diet, some in a modern, scientific way. Why not follow their example?

There is a way based on scientific research. It combats a cause of excess fat which starvation cannot fight. That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 20 years. Millions of boxes of them. The results you see wherever you look should induce you to accept them.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. So there is no secret, no reason to fear harm. You will know that all the good results come in a natural way. Go learn them now, by asking your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola.

ANTIOCH BOWS TO DEFIANCE IN CLOSE GAME AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Defiance College, leader of the Northwest Ohio Conference race, opened a twelve-day barnstorming tour against Ohio, North Carolina and West Virginia teams by defeating Antioch College's Division "B" quintet 33 to 30 in a hectic basketball game at Yellow Springs Monday night.

The visiting team led 12 to 11 at the half-way mark and at no time were the rival quintets separated by a margin greater than three points.

Antioch, after being on the losing end of three straight games, snapped out at and played real basketball. Bostwick, Antioch center, scored twelve points while Center, a guard, added seven more. Defiance is scheduled to meet Rio Grande Tuesday night.

Antioch's Division "B" team will have its last opportunity to win a basketball game Monday night, February 4 when it meets the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jacks" at Yellow Springs. After this contest, the Division "A" team, which lost two straight games before the Christmas holidays, will play out the remainder of the season's schedule.

PLAY INTRA-MURAL FINALS AT YELLOW SPRINGS HIGH SOON

Games Are Furnishing Recreation For Many Pupils

Finals for the boys' and girls' intra-mural basketball tournament at the Bryan High School in Yellow Springs will be played Friday night, February 1. This is expected to equal if not exceed the inter-school games in interest as it will be the culmination of games in which some twelve or thirteen teams have participated.

Practically every pupil in high school at Yellow Springs gets his physical exercise in the form of basketball. Every boy and girl not on the varsity teams is a member of some intra-mural team which at the present is battling its way towards the finals for Friday night. All season these teams have been playing each other and now that the tournament is here, interest is running high.

At the beginning of the season the teams were chosen carefully, they elected their captains and gave themselves names. For instance, among the boys there are the Run-Runners, the 88's, the Cat's Meow, the Knock-Outs, and the Wildcats. Among the girls are the names of Gold Diggers, Bryan Babies, Skyrockets, Katzenjammers, Moon Mullins, Bulldogs and Horsefeathers.

Besides affording an immense amount of exercise and recreation, this intra-mural basketball has the added advantage of bringing out material for the varsity teams in years to come. There are pupils on these teams who heretofore never had a basketball in their hands and who have developed from absolutely green material into fairly good players. Coach Arthur is eyeing these teams with no small interest and it is easy to imagine that he is already picking his players to fill the gaps left in this year's varsity teams by graduation.

Strong favorites among the boys for the winners of the final Friday night are the Cat's Meow, while the Skyrockets look good to cop the trophy for the girls' tournament. As a preliminary to these finals the Bryan Junior High team will play an aggregation from Clifton. The junior high game is scheduled for seven o'clock, with the girls' finals set for 8 o'clock and the boys' game approximately one hour later. An admission charge of fifteen cents will be taken for all three games.

TEACHER ELOPES WITH "PET"

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Jan. 29.—A 17-year-old "teacher's pet" and his teacher, a comely 35-year-old farmer's wife, drove away from the Glenn Holly school a week ago in the teacher's automobile.

Residents of Ellaville today were undecided whether the disappearance was an elopement or a kidnapping.

The teacher is Mrs. M. M. Nellens. Her "pet" is Edwin Chapman, a strapping farm boy, Edwin's father has sworn out a warrant for Mrs. Nellens charging her with kidnapping.

School mates of Edwin said they believed he had gone to Ohio as they had heard him tell of having an uncle in Akron who would give him a job should he decide to run away.

The teacher's husband said he was not especially interested in finding her although he would like to have the $300 Mrs. Nellens borrowed on the Nellens farm before leaving. He said she also drew her salary of $200 before she left.

Pupils at Glenn Holly school said young Chapman was seldom asked to recite in class but that he always drew high grades. They said Mrs. Nellens often had "fits or seizures" in school and that on these occasions she asked Edwin to take her home.

"I'm a 'Lucky Girl' because I've found a new way to keep my figure trim. Whenever the desire for a sweet tempts me, I light up a Lucky Strike. It's remarkable how nicely the toasted flavor of Luckies satisfies me. Toasting has taken out all impurities—all that is left is the thrilling Lucky aroma. I certainly am lucky to be 'The Lucky Girl.'"

ROSALIE ADELE NELSON

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Thousands are doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skillfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

FRAMED BY PHIL
Middletown High School's basketball team, which will attempt to snare the six-game winning streak of Xenia Central High's "Buccaneers" in a game on the Middle floor Friday night, has a record of seven victories and three defeats in ten starts already this season.

As an indication of the strength of the Middle quintet, it defeated Findlay High School 26 to 23 on the latter's court last Saturday night. Dayton Roosevelt was forced into an overtime period to defeat Findlay. That is as far as the comparison can go, however, as there seems to be no way to get a line on the relative merit of Roosevelt and Xenia.

On the preceding Friday night the Middle five lost to Toledo Libby High at Toledo by a margin of 27 to 18.

Middletown appears to have lost most of its 1928 letter men as Ledford, who was a substitute forward last season, is the only regular this year who was a member of the team last season.

Ledford, high scorer of the 1928-29 Middle quintet, got into the Xenia-Middletown contest last season but failed to score a point.

Middletown will probably line up Friday night with Ledford and Johannes or Abel at forwards, Davidson at center, Richter and Finkelman or Holsinger at guards.

The drawing for the opening round of the annual Greene County Class B High School Basketball Tournament which will be held at Xenia Central High gymnasium Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, will take place Monday afternoon February 18 at the office of County School Superintendent H. C. Aultman.

The first round of the tourney will begin at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Boys and girls basketball teams of nine schools—Jamestown, Jefferson Twp., Ross Twp., Cedarville, Yellow Springs, Beavercreek, Bellbrook, Spring Valley and Canebrake—will participate in the event.

The two teams reaching the finals in the boys' division will represent Greene County in the Class B division of the Southwestern Ohio sectional tournament at Springfield March 1 and 2.

A. F. Roush, superintendent of Ross Twp. High School, who is manager of the tourney against that plans are tentatively being made for staging a foul shooting contest for both boys and girls teams in connection with the tournament.

Bath Twp. and the O. S. and S. O. Home basketball teams will not participate in the county tournament this year.

Last summer Bath Twp. automatically withdrew from the county unit when it applied and received exemption from county supervision, according to Superintendent Roush.

Bath Twp. has always been one of the leading contenders in the yearly tourney. Its boys' team reached the finals last year before being eliminated and the girls' team of the school has won the county championship in the female division for the last two years.

ANTIOCH BOWS TO DEFIANCE IN CLOSE GAME AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Defiance College, leader of the Northwest Ohio Conference race, opened a twelve-day barnstorming tour against Ohio, North Carolina and West Virginia teams by defeating Antioch College's Division "B" quintet 33 to 30 in a hectic basketball game at Yellow Springs Monday night.

The visiting team led 12 to 11 at the half-way mark and at no time were the rival quintets separated by a margin greater than three points.

Antioch, after being on the losing end of three straight games, snapped out of it and played real basketball. Bostwick, Antioch center, scored twelve points while Conter, a guard, added seven more.

Defiance is scheduled to meet Rio Grande Tuesday night. Antioch's Division "B" team will have its last opportunity to win a basketball game Monday night, February 4 when it meets the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jacks" at Yellow Springs. After this contest, the Division "A" team, which lost two straight games before the Christmas holidays, will play out the remainder of the season's schedule.

The teacher is Mrs. M. M. Nellens. Her "pet" is Edwin Chapman, a strapping farm boy. Edwin's father has sworn out a warrant for Mrs. Nellens charging her with kidnapping.

School mates of Edwin said they believed he had gone to Ohio as they had heard him tell of having an uncle in Akron who would give him a job should he decide to run away.

The teacher's husband said he was not especially interested in finding her although he would like to have the $300 Mrs. Nellens borrowed on the Nellens farm before leaving. He said she also drew her salary of $200 before she left.

Pupils at Glenn Hedy school said young Chapman was seldom asked to recite in class but that he always drew high grades. They said Mrs. Nellens often had "fits or seizures" in school and that on these occasions she asked Edwin to take her home.

TEACHER ELOPES WITH "PET"

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Jan. 29.—A 17-year-old "teacher's pet" and his teacher, a comely 35-year-old farmer's wife, drove away from the Glenn Holly school a week ago in the teacher's automobile.

Residents of Ellaville today were undecided whether the disappearance was an elopement or a kidnapping.

The teacher is Mrs. M. M. Nellens. Her "pet" is Edwin Chapman, a strapping farm boy. Edwin's father has sworn out a warrant for Mrs. Nellens charging her with kidnapping.

School mates of Edwin said they believed he had gone to Ohio as they had heard him tell of having an uncle in Akron who would give him a job should he decide to run away.

A Girl Who Did Not Want To Be Kissed!

She Just Wanted Men To Want To Kiss Her

All her life Betty Brown had been taught it is depth of character and brains which really count.

Why didn't boys get her into a corner and make love to her? What was wrong with her? Was she unattractive? For some unknown reason she felt if some boy did not make love to her she would cry. She would not permit it, of course, but she wanted just one to try!

Was she physically unattractive? Was modesty a mistake and did men like women better if they were brazen in speech and dress?

The fluffy, made-up girls of her class always had dates with boys. Why was it? None of these girls were clever. It must be physical appeal which made men like one. Did she have it? She knew she was brighter than these girls. She could more than meet them in small talk and the wise crackling chatter of the young folks. She determined to give this problem the same systematic study she had used in her school work.

How Betty Brown, the auburn-haired heroine discovers physical charms are more attractive to men than mental ones ---how she finally finds that the attention thus attracted is of doubtful value makes a thrilling story of today's young folks. Don't miss

HEALTH TROUBLES BANISHED BY USE OF NEW KONJOLA

Gas Bloating and Dizzy Spells Are Entirely Relieved; Says Xenia Citizen

Health is the greatest asset we can possess. Without it life is uninteresting and we never seem to attain the utmost happiness we all strive so hard to acquire. Many of us go on from year to year with that half-sick feeling that comes from a run down and dis-ordered inner system, complaints of aches and pains and remarking about that tired, drowsy feeling that comes over us so often. Since the introduction of the new Konjola medicine many thousands of people throughout the Central and Middle West have voluntarily offered strong words of praise and many local men and women have given their signed statements to the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, telling of the wonderful benefits they derived from this celebrated compound.

One of the latest to describe the new health received from Konjola is Mr. J. E. Perkins, "but this medicine certainly has made a great change in me and that is the reason for this public statement."

"My stomach was so disordered that it was impossible for me to eat anything without suffering afterward. Food always fermented gasses that bloated me so terribly I had to fight for breath. My heart would beat so fast that I often worried for fear of some serious ailment. Of course, the intense suffering after meals soon took all appetite away and I actually had to force myself to sit down to a meal. It was hard for me to sleep during the night and I always felt tired and worn-out. There seemed to be a constant ringing and buzzing noise in my head and I often got so dizzy that it was necessary to hold on to something to keep from falling."

"Konjola proved to be such a wonderful medicine that it did not take a great amount to produce the results I had tried so long and hard to obtain. By the time I had finished the first bottle I felt just one hundred per cent better. I could almost feel the soothing effect every dose had on my system. I began eating food that I never dared to touch before and you can imagine my pleasure when everything digested perfectly. The gas and bloating spells never come over me and my heart acts in a normal manner. My appetite has increased and I really enjoy my meals without worry about after effects. I can sleep through the entire night and feel refreshed and full of vigor the next morning. That ringing and buzzing noise in my head was vanished and I never had a dizzy spell anymore. In every way Konjola has helped me and I am only too glad to endorse this medicine to others."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 E. Main Street, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

CHAPTER LXI

Byrd told her father and mother that Larry was out of town for a few weeks, and that explanation seemed to be sufficient for a while. But after the second week, her father's quizzical glances in her direction, and her mother's direct questions began to give her a gradually uncomfortable feeling.

In order to avoid her mother's dictatorial attitude, she couldn't point her back to Jacksonville and its unprogressive atmosphere. And the greatest shock of all was that there was no place for her in her father's house. A shelter—that was all. To slip back into a single existence, to take her former place in her old environment, was impossible.

The pallid lives of those around her got on her nerves. She wanted to reform the whole town, to wake them up to stir them and tell them they were missing the elixir of life. There was no justification for the narrow, soul-grinding economy that her mother and most of the other women in the town practiced, and it was only the outward shell of the precepts that had come down to them from their puritan ancestors.

It wasn't only missing Larry; it was missing marriage; missing the gaiety and intimacy, the crack on the stairs when Larry came home late, the very worry and tangle of things; everything that she had once abhorred she would now exchange right then and there for all the peace and horsehair of this little town.

She had been telling herself fifty times a day that she had done the only thing possible in her position, insulted continually as she had been by Larry's conduct toward her. His lack of responsibility, his friends, his poker games, his investments and finally that last straw, India! And fifty times a day the refrain grew thinner and flatter.

And Larry began to take on new and more attractive qualities, compared with the men she was meeting at the bank and in the neighborhood. She had seen men in the little restaurant where she lunched look over the menu calculatingly and calculatingly eschew a fifty-cent lunch for a forty-cent one. Larry's very spend-thrift qualities seemed enhanced now in her eyes.

At any rate he had the red-hot debts on top of his until the bankers would have awakened him to the load he was carrying; instead, she had shielded him from his own errors as if he was a little child. Yes, that old saying that five fishes fire could be applied to most marriages.

She wondered how Larry was standing their separation. He might be suffering as much as she, but he had his business to absorb him in the day time and at night he had his club, his friends, his game of poker and a complete freedom from espionage. He could turn in any hour he wanted without anyone inquiring what time he went to bed. And he was successful in building up his own business, for Mr. Polk had told her that he had begun to pay back the loan.

Well, if she went back to him now, it would be an admission that she was wrong and he was right. And after all, she had been right in the main issues. And if she returned with no further effort on his part or concessions to her point of view, things would be worse than ever. He would never take her seriously again. No, she decided, there really didn't seem any way to go back.

But Pat made it possible for her to return to Cleveland, and that was the first step. The letter came that morning in Pat's big, childish scrawl.

"Darlin'," she wrote, "Mr. Polk is sending sheet to open up some branch offices for the bank in the small towns around the county, and he'll be away for some time, coming home only week-ends. And you know, darlin', what a coward I am! Won't you please come and stay with me? Chet begs it with tears as big as marbles and he insists that they're not crocodile tears, either!"

Byrd's eyes were gleaming like violets drenched in dew as she looked up from the letter.

"From Larry?" asked her mother, inquisitively.

With a fleeting glance at her father, Byrd said: "Yes, he thinks it's time I went back home."

Mrs. Hamilton gave her a suspicious look and set her lips firmly.

"And I agree with him!" she snapped.

The next morning Byrd arrived in Cleveland at the Union station.

The Theater

The talking movies will never drive Emil Jannings, famed German actor, who is at the Bijou in "The Patriot," from the celluloid.

Yet, should Jannings' English not be smooth enough for the soundies, he still should not worry. For Jannings has the ability to express himself better with

Speaking of talkies, have you considered what a boon they must be to the blind? New York Theater owners report many sightless people now come to their theaters because the spoken words enable them to follow the entertainment even though they are unable to see the players.

Louise Dresser's new one, "The Grouch Bag," has had its title changed to "Empty Arms." But maybe it will be changed again before release day.

speaking than some of these so-called screen stars have by using all of the syllables and most of the vowels and consonants.

Jannings' training may have had something to do with this, as UFA, the German film corporation for which he previously worked, was inclined to productions in which the audience was permitted to use its mind somewhat at the expense of the sub-title. The actors were required to "put the story across" without much help from those happy-go-lucky young men who think up the patter for the thoroughly American sub-titles.

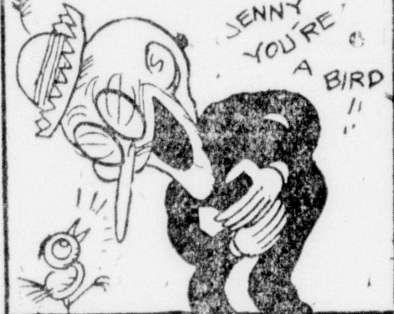

An example of the length to which Jannings will go to carry out an illusion, is contained in the accompanying picture of the story. Here is not the Jannings of the movie magazines but the Jannings

SECRET BRIDE LETS SPOUSE WED AGAIN; HE COMMITS SUICIDE

SENIATOBIA, Miss., Jan. 29. — One of the most unusual cases of romance and sacrifice that ever came to light in this section was revealed here when Inez Sneed, an invalid and former school teacher, filed a claim for a wife's share in the estate of Charles T. Bowden, who shot and killed himself recently. Attached to Miss Sneed's claim was a marriage certificate showing that she had wed Bowden more than a year ago.

According to the former teacher, she and Bowden were married while she was teaching and they agreed to keep the union a secret until the school term was ended. Shortly afterwards she was thrown from a horse and was severely injured. Bowden, she said, obtained medical aid for her but to no avail and all the doctors told her she would remain an invalid the rest of her life.

Meanwhile Bowden had met and loved another girl. He told his wife of this infatuation and she acquiesced in his plans to marry again.

"I agreed," Miss Sneed said. "I told him the doctors told me I would never recover. I told him that our dead romance could be buried forever as far as I was concerned and that he was at liberty to find happiness wherever he could."

Three days before Bowden's second marriage was to take place he fired a bullet through his head while seated on a creek bank which ran through his estate. His latest love knew nothing of the former marriage.

Bowden had brooded for weeks over his predicament and finally decided to end his own life.

Miss Sneed's parents were ignorant of their daughter's marriage until she filed the claim for a share in Bowden's estate.

HEARTS MENDED By Laird

Has a quarrel with Prince Charming quite broken your little heart? Cupid, from the wound of whose dart you suffer, would laugh in his sleeve if he had such a thing. "Bring the heart to me," he cries, and, exchanging his bow for an anvil, he heats the heart until it is soft and then hammers it into shape as good as new. Or he takes two bruised hearts and makes them one. "Hearts are tough things," he says. "You'd be surprised how much they'll stand. Look at these hearts on which I'm working. All smashed to smithereens. I'll have them whole again in no time." And he winks wickedly.

And not only once does he mend the same heart, but sometimes many times. He has his steady customers, does this careless youth; this blacksmith who works with living flesh. "New hearts for old," he cries, and weeping maidens and tragic men go to him sadly and come away with joy.

WEDNESDAY IS LAST DAY FOR RECEIVING BOY SCOUT ESSAYS

Wednesday noon is the deadline for submitting essays in the essay contest being sponsored by the Xenia District Scout Committee for all registered Greene County Boy Scouts.

Every Scout in the county is expected to join in and play the game by submitting an article written by himself.

Essays must not be more than 300 words in length and all essays must be in the office of City School Superintendent Louis Hamerly by noon Wednesday, January 30.

The subject upon which Scouts are writing is "Why I am a Boy Scout."

The winner of the contest will be awarded as first prize the privilege of attending camp at Camp Miami, Scout camp at Yellow Springs, for one week. Second prize is an official Boy Scout flashlight, and third prize will be $1 in Scouting merchandise.

The ten best essays will be published in The Gazette.

Essays will be judged by the Court of Honor committee.

O'K'd by House

James M. Beck, Republican, of Pennsylvania, no longer need fear ouster proceedings at the hands of Congress. For the legality of his election to the House of Representatives was vindicated by a vote of his fellow members. It had been charged that he wasn't a resident of the State at the time of his election.

WELFARE MEETING HERE THURSDAY IS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

The second annual District Child Welfare Conference of Greene, Clinton and Fayette Counties which will be held at the First M. E. Church in this city from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Thursday, January 31, is open to the public. Greene County residents are not only invited to attend but are urged to participate in the conference.

The public is particularly invited to attend the luncheon meeting from 12:15 to 1:45 o'clock at which the inspirational address will be made by the Rev. Sidney E. Sweet, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Columbus, O. A quartet from East High School, this city, will furnish vocal music.

The luncheon will be served by a committee of women members of the church congregation headed by Mrs. John A. North.

Louis Hamerly, city school superintendent, who is general chairman of the Tri-County Conference Committee, announces also that it will be well worth the while of Greene Countyans to hear the address of Dr. Francis N. Maxfield, of Ohio State University, whose subject at the morning session will be "The School."

Dr. Maxfield is considered an authority and capable of answering practical questions dealing with the child.

How Does She Do It!

(Not a Hair Out of Place!)

Do you know the very best way to make hair stay just as you have dressed it? Simply a few drops of Danderine! Try it, and you'll never want to use sticky dressings again—or even brillantine.

A little Danderine on the scalp actually dissolves every particle of dandruff scale, and leaves the head absolutely CLEAN. But stroke a few drops through the hair (use your comb or a Danderine-dampened towel) and see how well it looks and behaves! Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

SECRET BRIDE LETS
SPOUSE WED AGAIN;
HE COMMITS SUICIDE

SENATOBIA, Miss., Jan. 29. — One of the most unusual cases of romance and sacrifice that ever came to light in this section was revealed here when Inez Sneed, an invalid and former school teacher, filed a claim for a wife's share in the estate of Charles T. Bowden, who shot and killed himself recently. Attached to Miss Sneed's claim was a marriage certificate showing that she had wed Bowden more than a year ago.

According to the former teacher, she and Bowden were married while she was teaching and they agreed to keep the union a secret until the school term was ended. Shortly afterwards she was thrown from a horse and was severely injured. Bowden, she said, obtained medical aid for her but to no avail and all the doctors told her she would remain an invalid the rest of her life.

Meantime Bowden had met and loved another girl. He told his wife of this infatuation and she acquiesced in his plans to marry again.

"I agreed," Miss Sneed said, "I told him the doctors told me I would never recover. I told him that our dead romance could be buried forever as far as I was concerned and that he was at liberty to find happiness wherever he could."

Three days before Bowden's second marriage was to take place he fired a bullet through his head while seated on a creek bank which ran through his estate. His latest love knew nothing of the former marriage.

Bowden had brooded for weeks over his predicament and finally decided to end his own life.

Miss Sneed's parents were ignorant of their daughter's marriage until she filed the claim for a share in Bowden's estate.

HEARTS MENDED By Laird

Has a quarrel with Prince Charming quite broken your little heart? Cupid, from the wound of whose dart you are suffering, would laugh in his sleeve if he had such a thing. "Bring the heart to me," he cries, and exchanging his bow for an anvil, he beats the heart until it is soft and then hammers it into shape as good as new. Or he takes two bruised hearts and makes them one. "Hearts are tough things," he says. "You'd be surprised how much they'll stand. Look at these hearts on which I'm working. All smashed to smithereens. I'll have them whole again in no time." And he winks wickedly.

And not only once does he mend the same heart, but sometimes many times. He has his steady customers, does this ageless youth, this blacksmith who works with living flesh. "New hearts for old," he cries, and weeping maidens and tragic men go to him sadly and come away with joy.

How Does She
Do It!

(Not a Hair Out of Place!)

Do you know the very best way to make hair stay just as you have dressed it? Simply a few drops of Danderine! Try it, and you'll never want to use sticky dressings again—or even brillantine.

A little Danderine on the scalp actually dissolves every particle of dandruff scale, and leaves the head absolutely CLEAN. But stroke a few drops through the hair (use your comb or a Danderine-dampened towel) and see how well it looks and behaves! Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST
Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every drugstore in America has it, for only 35¢. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—
